WASHINGTON - The U.S. Navy is to begin a "coastal-surveil-lance exercise" in the Gulf of Fnnseca this week in an effort to belp Honduras and El Salvador stop the flow of munitions from Nicaragua to Salvadoran rebels, according to Pentagon officials.

The officials said Tuesday that two destroyers would be sent to the gulf, which is bordered by El Salva-dor, Honduras and Nicaragua.

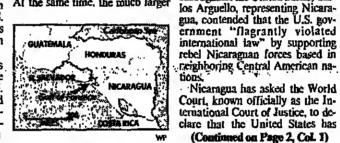

El Salvador and Nicaragua are about 20 miles (32 kilometers) apart at the mouth of the gulf. Dutch Are Said to Favor Crisis-Only' Cruise Plan

By Fred Hiart and Michael Getler

Washington Post Service WASHINGTON - The Dutch cabinet is leaning toward refusing to deploy NATO nuclear cruise missiles except during crises, a compromise that U.S. officials fear could unravel the NATO consensus to deploy medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe, according to dministration officials.

Dutch ministers are expected to take a formal stand on the issue in the next week or two. They have let it be known in Washington that they favor "crisis deployment" only. This would allow them to keep the missiles out of the Netherlands while still fulfilling their commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Fifteen to 20 aftershocks measuring 3.0 to 4.0 occurred in the six hours after the quake, the Seismographic Station reported.

Although the main tremor was felt for hundreds of miles, damage was centered in Morgan Hill, about 10 miles south of San Jose. In a subdivision of luxury homes in Morgan Hill, 30 houses were damaged,

Portuguese Celebrating 1974 Revolt Soares Confident On Austerity Plan

LISBON — Portugal celebrated Wednesday the 10th anniversary of the revolution that restored democ-

President Antonio Ramalho Eanes, flanked by Prime Minister Mário Soares and Marshal Antonio de Spinola, 74, a veteran of colonial wars who headed a military junta after the 1974 coup, watched an hourlong military parade down Lisbon's Avenida da Liberdade.

Mr. Soares said Tuesday night that he was confident that this year would mark the turning point in his government's drive for economic recovery. The government's ausierity program, he said, was already bearing fruit and he was not alarmed at having to carry out unpleasant policies.

Portugual is going through its worst economic time since the revolution. There is widespread discontent over rising living costs and the government's tough measures.

The mood of the crowds lining the avenue was subdued. There were cheers for Mr. Eanes and a sprinkling of red carnations, symbol of the revolution that ended nearly 50 years of rightist dictator-

Festivities were marred by disagreements over how the day should have been organized.

Many leftists staged their own rally later in the day. Communist Party posters around the city bore the carnation emblem, declaring that "April will live with the people," and emphasized the slogan,
"Fascism — never again."

Both Mr. Soares and Mr. Eanes have explained their choice of Marshal Spinola as honorary president of official ceremonies by saying he was the symbol of the revolution.

The choice was attacked by the Communists, who accuse him of complicity in an abortive rightist countercoup in March 1975. Mar-shal Spinola has vigorously denied the allegation, Marshal Spinola's book "Portugal and the Future," in which be advocated a negotiated settlement of the colonial wars in Africa, is widely considered to have helped touch off the revolt by young mili-tary officers in 1974.

Legislators to Try To Cut Reagan's Request on Arms

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON - Senate Democrats and a key Republican say they will try to cut President Ronald Reagan's military spending request in an effort to make larger cuts in U.S. budget deficits.

The pledge occurred Tuesday as publican leadership's proposed reductions in military and domestic discretionary spending. These reductions, which would amount to $58 billion over three years, are a central part of the three-year, $144billion deficit-reducing package the president supports.

Senator Lawton Chiles of Florida, the ranking Democrat on the Budget Committee, and Senator William L. Armstrong of Colorado. a Republican on the committee, said that $144 billion was not enough. Senator Chiles said he would move to save more on the military, and Senator Armstrong said he would support this and other efforts to cut both more military and domestic spending. The Senate has already approved $47 hillion in were spent in investigating techno- tax increases and $23 hillion in spending reductions.

Rumasa's Ex-Chief Held in Frankfurt

FRANKFURT (AP) — The former head of Rumasa, Spain's biggest private holding company, was arrested at Frankfurt Airport on Wednesday when he arrived from the United States, a state prosecutor said, José Maria Ruiz-Mateos, 55, was seized by West German police acting on a Spanish police arrest warrant and was held awaiting a court's decision on extradition, according to the prosecutor, Gunther Mitscher. Mr. Ruiz-Mateos left Spain last year shortly after the government nationalized much of his $3.5-billion empire.

The Frankfurt High State Court is expected to rule Thursday on Spain's request to extradite the businessman to face charges of embezzlement and forgery, Mr. Mitscher said.

Son of Robert Kennedy Found Dead

PALM BEACH, Florida (AP) — David Anthony Kennedy, 28, son of the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy, was found dead in his hotel room Wednesday, police said.

Mr. Kennedy had a history of drug problems, but police would not immediately say what caused the death, except that there was no evidence of foul play. Sergeant Henry Marchman of the Palm Beach police said a desk clerk found his body in a room of the Brazilian Court Hotel, where Mr. Kennedy had been staying alone.

"The constitution cannot control such prejudices but neither can it tolerate them," the chief justice, Warren E. Burger, wrote for the court. The decision is a victory for Linda Sidori Palmore of Seffner, Florida, the latest and the service of the married. who lost custody of her daughter Melanie, now 6, after she married Clarence Palmore, who is black.

Mrs. Palmore had been awarded custody of Melanie when she divorced Anthony J. Sidoti, a white, in Florida in 1980. In 1982, Mr. Sidoti won custody of the girl in a Tampa court. The decision later was upheld by a Florida appeals court. The ruling appeared to hinge on her father's fear that Melanie would be subject to society's scorn because of the interracial marriage.

According to the lawyer, Srdjan Popovic, the proceedings on a charge of hostile propaganda have been opened against Dragomir Olujic, a local radio assistant, and Miodrag Milic, a writer. If convicted, they could be imprisoned for up to 10 years. Mr. Olujic and Mr. Milic are the only two of the group to be subjected to criminal proceedings.

Mr. Olujic and Mr. Milic were released Tuesday night after four days in police custody. They were the last of a group of 28 dissidents seized in a private apartment as they were listening to Mr. Djilas lecturing on Yugoslavia's problem of nationalities.

Tass Reports Iraqi Criticism of U.S.

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Iraq and the Soviet Union on Wednesday condemned U.S. policies in the Middle East and the Gulf after talks in the Kremlin, according to Tass. The talks appeared to underline a revival of close relations between the two countries.

Iraq's first deputy prime minister, Taha Yasin Ramadan, and the Soviet prime minister, Nikolai A. Tikhonov, said that Washington's "adventurist policy" in the Middle East was the source of continuing tension there, the Tass news agency reported. Western diplomats said Mr. Ramadan's visit appeared to mark a resumption of warm political relations between Baghdad and Moscow after a period of strain.

Some diplomats said that Baghdad, angered by repeated U.S. accusations that it was using chemical weapons in the war with Iran, was trying to repair relations with the Kremlin. The joint statement indicated that Iran was moving away from its recent eventuanded approach toward East and West and appeared to be leaning more toward the Soviet Union, they

A local study predicts that by 1990, there will be as much office and shop space in a four-squaremile (10-square kilometer) area surrounding Dunwoody, an area served mostly by two-lane roads and sewer and water systems designed for residential neighborhoods, as there is now on the market in downtown Atlanta.

In the past decade, the population of the 15-county metropolitan Atlanta area grew by more than 27 percent, to about 2.5 million.

Roundabout Path to China

With symbolic aptness, President Reagan is approaching Beijing slowly and obliquely, by way of Hawaii and Guam. It took a considerable course correction for him to concede that China's friendship is worth the voyage. But what matters most is the result. A long and augly debate is virtually ended. In the United States as in China, ideology has yielded to practical mutual interests.

Thirty-five years ago Republicans pro-claimed that China was "lost" to the free 3 world, and they blamed Democratic folly or treachery. Even when President Richard Nix-son made peace with Maoist China in 1972. some Republicans felt betrayed. Their dissent redoubled when President Jimmy Carter normalized diplomatic relations and won approval for the Taiwan Relations Act of 1979.

That act ratified the clever ambiguity by which America preserved a practical tie with Taiwan. It accepts the claim of both Beijing and Taiper that there is only one China. Further relations with the "people of Taiwan." including even some arms sales, are therefore conducted through an "institute" rather than an embassy. But Washington continues to guarantee Taiwan's security and prosperity. Even so, Mr. Reagan warned at the time that normalization could "prove disastrous, not only for Taiwan but for the United States." As a presidential candidate, he carelessly remarked that he guessed be really preferred

"official" relations with Taiwan. His running mate, George Bush, a former envoy to China, had to rush to Beijing to put out the fire.

All that is ancient history now. As president, Mr. Reagan has widened the path opened by his predecessors. Like them, be no doubt saw a strategic value in treating China as an anti-Soviet partner. But what may be turning a relationship of convenience into something stronger is China's quest to build a more normal society.

Deng Xiaoping, China's septuagenarian reformer, has held to an anti-Soviet line while also standing apart from the United States with the nonaligned Third World. At the same time he seeks to open China's windows to the world, dangles pragmatic peace overtures be-fore Taiwan, and offers capitalist autonomy to a post-colonial Hong Kong. In a totalitarian society, an abrupt lurch back to Maoist orthodoxy is always possible. But, as long as it lasts, the changed mood in China calls for a sympathetie American response.

Mr. Reagan's four days in China will give him an opportunity to strengthen a useful arrangement with practical gestures, like the agreement to permit American companies to help China develop nuclear power for peaceful uses. Not least, it will close a bitter chapter by signifying that America's China policy is now stable and dependable.

Good News About Crime

The FBI released some encouraging figures last week. Serious crimes are down significantly in America; the numbers for 1983 represent the sharpest drop since the bureau began keeping comparable statistics in 1960. In every region of the country and in every category of serious crime - murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny and motor vehicle theft - there were dramatic declines. The attorney general says that some of the percent decline in reported crime is due to federal law enforcement efforts, and so it may be. In the last three years 1,000 new agents have joined the ranks of the FBI and the Drug Enforcement Administration. The federal law enforcement budget is up 50 percent, and a major effort has been mounted to combat organized crime and the drug traffic. The narcotics trade remains a priority problem, mainly because of the high volume of violent crime generated by addiction. Because these criminal enterprises are organized, international in scope and extremely profitable, the government must take the lead in fighting them.

However, most of the offenses on the FBI's list of serious crimes fall within the jurisdiction of state and local police forces, and no amount of federal effort will account for the statistical falloff in these areas. Demographics play the most important role. It is well known that most violent crimes are committed by men between the ages of 18 and 26. There have simply been fewer of them in recent years, and the size of this cohort will continue to diminish.

Birthrates began to decline in the early 1960s. Men born before then are now past the dangerous years and have settled down to lawabiding useful lives - or, in some cases, to long prison terms. There are more 22-year-olds in the country than people of any other age: 4,451,724. The number at each age declines all the way down to the 15-year-olds - there are only 3,518,982 of them — before leveling off. So the prospects are good that crime figures will continue to decline for a number of years because there will be fewer potential criminals.

Two points should be kept in mind on these new statistics. First, they challenge the idea that hard times produce increased criminal activity. In the past three years America has seen some of the highest unemployment figures in modern times, while crime went down, not up. Second, there will be an unprecedented opportunity in the next 10 years to devote reased resources to the war on crime and problems of dealing with offenders.

Prison conditions and alternative sentencing for nonviolent offenders are two projects that need attention; control of the drug traffic and treatment and rehabilitation of addicts can use a larger share of law enforcement resources. Falling crime rates can make these innovations and budget shifts possible.

Digging Deeper in Afghanistan

The Russians' spring offensive in the Panj-shir Valley north of Kabul could prove to be one of the bloodiest campaigns of a cruel war. The Red Army apparently means business and is using some 20,000 troops, hundreds of tanks and helicopters, and, for the first time, heavy bombers. Afghan resistance groups could be in for a clobbering.

It is now beyond doubt that the war is becoming increasingly unpopular in the Soviet Union both with those conscripts used to make up a force of some 120,000 (some reports insist that the number has been significantly increased recently to about 200,000) and with their families. It is not possible to give an accurate figure of Soviet dead, although the figure may well be about 5,000, with more than double that number wounded. But of late the Soviet press has reflected the poor morale of the occupation forces, and simply, the signs of war weariness. There has been precious little evidence of Soviet readiness to negotiate a settlement to end the war despite international condemnation and bitter opposition from the Afghan people. If anything, as the offensive demon-strates, the Soviet leadership is digging deeper into its Afghan bunker.

General Shefket Pasha, commanding the Young Turk army, the Council of Ministers has just decided to proclaim a state of siege in the city. The three thousand men of the garrison of Yildiz Kiosk, who left their barracks and went to the hills in the direction of Therapia, surrendered this morning [April 25], as did the whole garrison of Yildiz Kiosk. These troops were at once disarmed. The Sultan remains in his palace with the hundred soldiers who form his personal guard. The Selamich barracks in Scutari, on the Asiatic side of the Bosphorous, of which the garrison, three thouened to bombard Pera, is at present surrounded. Its surrender is certain.

CALIFORNIA - The United States battle fleet of 110 warships was anchored in the Atlantic tonight [April 25] off Panama, after completing passage through the canal in 47 hours, an alt-time record for movements of ships through the waterway. Transfer of the fleet from the Pacific to the Atlantic was at the last moment made a problem in maneuvers to determine the speed with which the fleet could be moved from one coast to the other in time of war. Originally, it was planned to make the transfer in 14 days. The fleet will remain in Panama waters until May 4 and then participate in a war game in the Caribbean, in which a phantom "enemy" is supposed to have challenged American naval hegemony in those waters, threatening the Panama Canal.

Signs of Chinese Independence Are Real

WASHINGTON - President Reagan's visit to China this week reflects the fact that Chinese-American relations are no longer as contentious as they were in 1982 and early 1983. Leaders of both countries bave come to realize that their relationship is too important to be allowed to degenerate into bickering and confrontation. But does that mean the two countries have returned to the heady days of 1979-80, when their leaders spoke of a "united front" linking China and the West in a struggle against Soviet expansionism?

Some observers think they have. They discount China's assertions of an independent foreign policy as little more than rhetorical posturing. These analysis bold that China still needs close strategic ties with Washington to offset the growing Soviet military presence along the Chinese-Soviet frontier, and that China is now linked inextricably to the international economie system dominated by the United States. They believe that General Secretary Hu Yaobang's insistence that China "never attaches itself to any big power or group of powers" is designed to mollify critics, both in-side China and in the Third World, who oppose Beijing's continued alignment with the United States. Such an analysis, however, is mistaken. It fails to appreciate China's desire for national independence and its reluctance to become too closely tied to any larger power, both of which are deeply rooted in China's troubled relations with the West over the last century and a half. It also overlooks the differences between China and the Unit-ed States over Taiwan and trade differences that are unlikely to be resolved soon.

Most important, that analysis ignores the fact that Beijing's percep-

DARIS - Is the Pacific becoming the Mediterranean of the 21st century? Will the United States shift the center of gravity of its foreign policy away from a decaying Europe toward this emerging center

For the political analyst, it is always difficult to disonguish between historical trends and trendiness. Europeans may be justified in their fears that Western Europe will fall farther and farther behind America and Japan in the technological race. But even if such a lag occurs, it does not necessarily imply that the Pacific will replace Western Europe as a world historical center and as an American priority.

Sueb a strictly economic view of history does not stand up to scrutiny. The historical role of Western Europe and the weight of the West was based on a cultural unity, first reinforced by a common religious faith, Christianity, and then by the spirit of capitalism. Economic power was not dissociated from military might and cultural influence. No similar common ground exists in

Not only is the disparity between California and Asia enormous, but the Asian countries themselves are extremely heterogeneous. Buddhism did not and could not play the same unifying political role in the Pacific as did Christianity in Europe and America. Economic power is dissociated from military tion of the international balance of power has changed significantly since the late 1970s. No longer is China convinced that the Soviet Union is able to undertake a global strategic offensive. Rather, Beijing sees Moscow bogged down in quag-mires at home and in Eastern Europe, Afghanistan and Southeast Asia. It also sees signs of U.S. resurgence, as reflected in the military buildup undertaken by the Reagan administration. In the Chinese analysis, the geo-political relationship between the nalists and scholars in China, and to

A Difficult Market to Tap T HAS BEEN obvious since President Richard Nixon reopened relations with China in 1972 that the mainland, with its population of one billion souls and as yet uncharted natural resources in oil, coal and other materials, is a huge market begging to be tapped.

But some caution is in order. First of all, it is difficult to know how to gauge the ultimate success of Deng Xiaoping's radical, market-oriented reforms, because of the still-strong opposition from the political center in China.

Second, China — as Mr. Deng reminds us — is a poor, backward nation. There is a naive U.S. assessment of how quickly China can develop its potential. But on energy, for example, the World Bank says "future prospects are uncertain."

Third, there is reason to wonder about the U.S. commitment to a new relationship with China. The Reagan administration has such a dislike for government-to-government dealings, and blind faith in the private sector — even where there is none — that it may not be able to beip China achieve all that it would like.

The first thing that Mr. Deng will ask, one of Mr. Reagan's most influential economic advisers admits, is, How much economic assistance will you give us? And the simple answer, the Reagan official said, is "None, because we will be relying on our private sector to do this. We don't have any . . . agency of government that I know of that can make international loans at reduced interest rates."

China now has about 9 percent of the U.S. textile market, an administration source said, "and at the current moment, they have to learn to be satisfied with that." Except for simple electronic items and cheap shoes, there is little else they can sell the United States. Offshore oil? Coal? That is a long way off.

emphasize in its press the negative features of American society. Above all, China will maintain its current dialogue with the Soviet Union. This will lead in all probato reassert its independence from the United States. Moreover, China bility to further increases in exchanges, trade and diplomatic con-tacts between the two countries. Chinese leaders believe that better predicts an increasingly multipolar world, in which both Moscow and Washington are losing their ability relations with Moscow are an effective way of reducing tensions along Thus, the signs of independence in Chinese foreign policy are real. Beijing will persist in criticizing the Chinese-Soviet border, avoiding involvement in a U.S.-Soviet confrontation and acquiring the tech-nology to modernize the factories American "begemonism" in the Third World. It will continue to imported from the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe in the 1950s. But independence does not necessarily mean equidistance. In the absence of unlikely policy changes inside China and American mismanagement of relations with Beijing, China will remain, by its own account, closer to the United States than to the Soviet Union.

ft may try to limit its economic and cultural relations with the West, but it will not break them altogether. It will refrain from forging a close strategie alignment with the United States, but will continue diplomatic dialogue with Washing-ton, attempt to find points of agree-ment on major global and regional issues, and may even buy some American weapons.

The most likely future for Chinese-American relations is that the two countries will not form the close partnership that was the dream of the late 1970s. But there are alternatives other then a return to the en-mity of the 1950s. Americans must learn to accept and respect an inde-pendent China. The relationship, complex and ambiguous as it may be, can be beneficial to both sides.

The prospect of a strategie shift of U.S. priorities away from Europe to the Pacific — though sometimes used by Americans to reawaken the Europeans on defense issues lacks credibility. More concrete geostrategic concultural and historical aspects. Even if Western Europe is no longer the ceater of power it was, and even if it were in an accelerating process of decay — something which is far from proven, given its commercial might — it still is the essential stake of the East-West competition. Were Western Europe to become Finlan-dized, neutralized or, even worse, conquered, the world balance of power would tilt toward the Soviet empire. The strategic, political and psychological blow to the United States would be immense. cannot become by a magie stroke For West Europeans who want to be at least a key actor in their own history, it is not enough to exist as an essential strategic stake in the world balance. But the Europeans, to be taken seriously by others, must start by taking themselves scriously. Pervasive cynicism and pessimism can lead nowhere. If the Pacific cannot become what Europe once was, Europe can, paradoxically, become the hear of its own past if it surmounts its self-deprecation.

Grenada — From Spice Island to Coney Island

By Stanley Karnow

CT. GEORGES, Grenada — Six D months after American military forces landed here, this lovely little Caribbean island is again being invaded. The intruders this time are U.S. developers, determined to make Grenada a profitable tourist spot.

Most Grenadians welcomed the first invasion, which ousted a hardline leftist regime linked to Cube and the Soviet Union. But those I have talked with in recent days are less than enthusiastic about the current wave of Americans, whom they refer to as carpetbaggers.

Their fear is that tiny Grenada will tose its pristine charm as the outside contractors build huge hotels and perhaps even a casino to attract cheap package tours. They have every reason to be concerned. The key to the future here is a t0.000-foot runway built by Cuba for the previous Grenadian government The airfield is due to start operations in the fall, after navigational equip-ment is installed and its terminal buildings and roads are finished.

The United States is contributing half of the $40 million needed to complete the project, with the rest coming from Britain, Canada and other sources. The airfield promises to transform Grenada drastically.

At the moment, there are fewer than 600 hotel rooms on the island, hardly enough to accommodate the passengers from two jumbo jets. So, to make the airfield a worthwhile venture, Grenada will have to experience a building spree.

Nobody here wants to see sky-scrapers of the kind that blight many other places in the Caribbean. But it is difficult to imagine that such development can be avoided.

The Reagan administration is seeking a big aid program for Grenada that may amount to more than the island can absorb.

Much will depend on Grenada's eventual political composition, which should be determined after elections late this year. The island has had a caretaker administration since the U.S. intervention last October.

Thatcher Is Right on Qadhafi

By William Pfaff

PARIS — Margaret Thatcher's is P probably the only realistic answer to Moamer Qadhafi. The terrorism he practices is not so strange or modern as some may think, and he will pass. To identify him with vast plans of international destabilization is to give him too much importance. He nonetheless must be dealt with in the short run, and isolation and containment are the best way. Colonel Qadhafi, like Ayatollah Khomeini in Iran, is a modern case of aggressive and xenophobic Islamic messianism, with antecedents in the Senussi movement in Cyrenaica, and in Persian Shiism. A claptrap of modern ideology has been added in Libya's case, picked up from Third World socialism, and the whole is fueled by the colonel's megalomania. It is also a mistake to see the situation as worse now than it has been before. The machine-gunning from the embassy in London was certainly something new, but Colonel Qadhafi has in the past made a great deal more trouble for his neighbors— Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, Egypi-and Chad — than be has ever done for Europeans or Americans. France, of the Europeans, has the one really serious problem, being committed to be placed within a perspective of things known and survived before. It is a measure of the gap of com-prehension that dialogue with men like this is all but futile, and reprisals, meant to teach lessons or compe changes in conduct, ordinarily are useless. Terrorist actions of the Libyan kind do not take place within a nexus of cost-reward calculations support a feeble government in Chad, half of which country Libya controls. Libya's terrorism in the West must such as Washington or London are accustomed to make. There is, after all, every reason to think that the perceptual framework of Colonel Qadhafi is one in which machine-gunning a London police-woman, as well as dissident Libyans, and arranging for all this to be taped for television are a logical part of a rational whole. My means are sane, my motives and object mad, said Melville's Captain Ahab.

The American government has announced that terrorism will no longer find mere passive resistance from the United States. State-sponsored ter-rorism is really a form of warfare, Secretary of State George Shultz said recently. It is a weapon of unconven-tional war against democratic societies, taking advantage of the openness of these societies. The State Department says that means of active defense are being sought, methods for pro-empting attacks. That is the kind of thinking that is going on now.

The thinking is going on, but it is hard to believe that the results will be very useful. A State Department offi-cial says that assassinations and attacks on terrorists' beadquarters are ruled out. What is left?

It is exactly our problem that the most effective way to deal with terrorists is to become a terrorist. That works to a point. But then you have become indistinguishable from the terronsis. You have met the enem and you are theirs. Mr. Shultz said in a speech to the Trilateral Commission at the beginning of this month that there is a danger that it become established that terrorism works. Where has it worked? Britain is not knuckling un-der to Libyan intimidation. What drove the United States out of Lebanon was not Libyan- or Iranianbacked terrorism but the collapse of the political assumptions that underlay the marines' commitment there. Terrorism is nearly always the sub-stitute for something more serious. It is the weapon of the weak. It is employed by governments or groups that have no better way of enforcing demands and claims. Mrs. Thatcher has made the right choice by breaking relations. The other West European countries would do well to join her. Unofficial relations should be reduced to the minimum. Libya has oil to sell and financial interests in the West, as well as a need for Western goods, but there will be people on both sides who will go on handling these matters pragmatically. They will assess their own risks. The United States broke relations long ago and relentlessly criticized Colonel Qadhafi, but the colonel continues to sell the United States his oil.

It is an imprudent policy to elevate men such as Colonel Qadhafi to peaks of governmental outrage and international press attention, form-ing well-publicized State Department task forces to think about them. It rewards their extravagance, inviting more. They are not that important.
Colonel Qadhafi's promised revenge upon Britain will be to open Irish Republican Army offices in all Libyan cities. Pity the IRA militants who will have to man them.

The incidents of terrorism for which Libya —and Iran —have been responsible are tragedies for those who are their victims. They are also of slight consequence. Contemporary life is full of risks. Murders take place every Saturday night for motives no better than Colonel Qadhafi's. Even the U.S. Marine Corps and French paratroop victims of terrorism in Lebanon were no more than might have died in a plane crash. Colonel Qadhafi is simply one of the incidental hazards of existence in the late 20th century.

Britain's answer to the Krugerrand

One troy ounce of solid Platinum — at little more than bullion price

BY ROYAL ASSENT Britain's Isle of Man Treasure, has issued a new legal tender Bullion Coin to rival South Africa's Krugerrand as today's most attractive investment in precious metals. Minted from one troy ounce of 99.95 Fine Platinum, the new Noble i internationally recognised as a true Bullion Coin, and is priced, at little more than the daily rate fixed by the London Platinum Quotation. Ayrton Metals Ltd, and other authorised distributors, apply a minting and handling premium comparable to those applied to

Not surprisingly, the new Noble is already an outstanding success in Europe, where leading Swiss financial advisers have long been advocating that a minimum of ten percent of capital be put into tangible, tradeable bullion assets.

An outstanding dollar commodity for capital growth

The Noble is traded internationally, and quoted in U.S. Dollars; (as well as local currencies) in the national press and on T.V. data services. Platinum is a dollar commodity, so this offers valuable protection against a falling E. In recent years, Platinum has performed, well in the market, and with world demand (notably in the automotive and other high technology industries) rising steadily, the outlook for capital growth looks particularly promising at this time. Obviously Platinum prices can fluctuate in the short term, but because production costs are high, prices are cushioned against falling to a level too low to maintain a viable mining and refining operation. In fact, with the total output reaching the Western World at barely 70 tonnes a year (less than one fourteenth that of gold) a long-term surplus of Platinum is unlikely.

The growth that has seen the new Noble appreciate by 5.3% in only three months seems poised at least to continue, if not to accelerate.

Louis Vuitton. The art of travel

Some people have a talent for travel. They look upon travelling as a fine art. These true connoisseurs require the best: it is for them that the Louis Vuitton craftsmen create luggage and perpetuate the tradition of custom-made pieces. These imaginative and skilled artisans turn each trunk, suitcase and bag, be it of the traditional "Monogram" line or the new

"Challenge" line, ioto a model of strength, durability and refinement.

They meticulously select their materials: traditional leather and brass, or innovative space-age fabrics such as Kevlar*, and uthenticate their work with the renowned initials.

The Louis Vuitton concept of luggage is unique. It has been maintained since 1854.

DNA Bank Established in Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) - The world's first DNA bank has been established at the Indiana Utuversity School of Medicine, and a university official called it "a big step toward helping future generations."

DNA, or deoxyribonucleic acid, is human genetic material that con-

University officials said the bank will allow officials to store the material for analysis, especially the diagnosis of genetic diseases that can be used for counseling of families who are at risk of passing to diseases. "This bank has the potential of belping literally thousands of families," said Dr. Joe Christian, chairman of the university's medical genetics department, "In the field of medical genetics, we have to think not only of the patients we're treating who are affected with a generic disease, but also of the generations that are yet unborn. China Keeps Old Oil Field Pumping

By Christopher Wren New York Times Sernce

DAQING, China — For the last 20 years, the Chinese government has held up Daqing, the nation's largest oil field, as a shining example of the sort of all-out productivity that every enterprise should emu-

Developed on the windswept Manchurian plain without foreign assistance or technology, Daqing has been producing one million barrels of oil a day — about half of China's daily total output. Now. the overworked wells of the aging field are being squeezed to produce a new burst of oil. In effect, the Chinese are trying to keep Daqing and their handful of other onshore fields going strong until the vast effort to find petroleum offshore pays off.

That might take eight or 10 years, according to the Western oil companies that are spending large amounts of money to explore for oil along China's long coastline. So far, their exploratory wells have come up dry or with only traces of oil. Even if the ocean yields major oil fields, the Western companies doubt that China could begin offshore production before 1992.

By that time, the race might be lost. The Chinese are trying to quadruple industrial and agricultural production before the century ends, and the fuel required for such expansion might outstrip oil (Continued on Page 11, Col. 1)

22% Increase in Sales

PARIS - First-quarter sales of Rhône Poulenc, France's largest chemical company, rose 22 percent to 12.9 billion francs ($1.6 bilbon) from 10.5 billion francs a year earlier, Loik Le Floch-Prigent, chairman, said Wednesday. Answering questions at a news conference, he said the results were "a good beginning" for 1984 and that he expected sales to continue increasing at their present pace, but he declined to provide first-quarter earnings figures or projections. As reported, the company earned 98 million francs last year. in contrast to a loss of 844 million francs in 1982. Before that it had posted yearly losses since 1979. Sales last year rose 15.9 percent to 43.1 billion francs from 37.1 billion francs in 1982.

Mr. Le Floch said the group's investments worldwide would be sales, which he added compared with 7 to 8 percent of sales spent by the company's main competitors in Western Europe and the United

But he said that in light of the company's relatively limited capac-ity to finance investments from earnings, he would be seeking out-side, and possibly public, financing for future investments. "We will be seeking the best solution for us, and l exclude nothing" in searching for ways to arrange the financing, Mr. Le Floch said.

He said he intented to maintain the present relative importance of Rhône-Poulenc's most important sectors. He cited those sectors as beavy chemicals, which last year accounted for 32.4 percent of group sales, health-pharmaceuticals, 22.7 percent and agrochemicals, 10.8 percent.

The company also said it would continue attempting to reduce losses in its textile affiliates, which accounted for 16.8 percent of total sales and an operating loss of 230 million francs last year. In 1982 the operating loss was 295 million

Mr. Le Floch ruled out the sale or disposal of ailing sectors in the company, notably textiles. "Our approach is to move into better shape where we are losing, and improve earnings where we are doing well," he said.

Mr. Le Floch called Japan "an open market," and said the company hopes to expand its operations there. He said the company gener-ated 23 billion yen ($102.3 million) in sales there last year and the volume is growing at a rate of 20 percent annually. The company will he seeking to expand its links with Japanese chemical companies in health products, among other areas, and with Japan's scientific community, the executive said.

EC Said to Plan Curb on IBM's Sales Practice

Compiled by Our Staff From Disputches BRUSSELS - The European Community Commission is preparing to take action against Interna-tional Business Machines Corp., the world's largest computer maker, in a long-running dispute over fair competition, EC officials said Wednesday.

They said the commission had rejected a compromise that had been proposed by IBM late fast year over charges that the U.S. company has misused its dominant position in the market for large, mainframe computers in the 10 nations of the community.

[A spokesman for IBM Europe told The International Herald Tri-bune Wednesday that the "com-mission confirmed to IBM today that they are on a dual track. On the one hand, the commission is preparing a decision. On the other hand, settlement discussions are continuing."]

The commission had pursued the case despite pressure from the Reagan administration to drop it, they said. The U.S. Justice Department decided in 1982 to abandon a 13year-old antitrust ease against

One commission official said 1BM's refusal to divulge "inter-face" information on its mainframe 370 computer system - its largest and most successful computers violates the EC's fair-competition principles. This information details how non-IBM computer equip-ment can be linked technically to IBM products, the official said.

Article 86 of the EC's founding treaty prohibits "any abuse . . . of a dominant posicon within the Common Market."

Commission officials were reported to be drafting a document to outlaw the 1BM sales practices. EC officials said Frans Andriessen, the European commissioner for competition policy, was confident that a decision against IBM would be approved before August.

Officials said IBM had between 50 and 90 percent of the market for various mainframe computers to the 10 nations.

New York Stocks Creep Higher

NEW YORK - Prices on the New York

Stock Exchange, after drifting most of the day on investor concerns about interest rates, were trying to stage a rally late Wednesday afternoon but trading was sluggish.

The Dow Jones industrial average, down nearly 4 points at the outset after climbing 13.40 Tuesday, was ahead 3.45 to 1.166.35 an hour before the close.

Advances led declines 783-666 among the 1,911 issues traded. Five-hour valume amounted to about 68.8

million shares compared with 71 million in the corresponding period Tuesday.

Analysts said blue-chip stocks continued to attract more attention than most of the other issues through the session and were involved in a late afternoop raily attempt.

But brokers have been been skeptical Tuesday's late rally would carry over into this session because the buying burst appeared to lose its steam in the final minutes of trading.

In the previous two days, the market did little most of the session and then made a move late in the final hour. Monday it was down and Tuesday it was up. That's an indicatino profes-

GEC Said to Buy Stake in Distillers

LONDON — General Elec-tric Co. has been buying Distillers Co. shares, and may have acquired 10 million shares or about 2.7 percent of those outstanding market sources said Wednesday.

Distillers shares were quoted Wednesday at 290 pence, up 4 pence from Tuesday and 244 ence earlier this year. A GEC spokesman declined comment on the amount of Distillers stock GEC may have bought. But he said GEC has used its cash reserves to buy equities in the past when pros-pects seemed remunerative. GEC's cash reserves were last reported at £1.48 billion ($2.08 billion).

A spokesman for Wood. Mackenzie, a brokerage, said GEC appears to have bought into Distillers as a high-yielding recovery issue, rather than for acquisition purposes. GEC is not related to General Electric Co. of the United States.

Skandia Insurance to Buy London Broker

By Bob Hagerty

International Herald Tribune LONDON -Skandia Insurance Co. of Sweden, Scandinavia's big-gest insurer, said Wednesday that it had agreed to buy 29.9 percent of a midsized London stockbrokerage, Quilter Goodison & Co.

The companies declined to disclose the price. It was the latest in a long series of links prompted by last year's agreement between the British government and the exchange to open up London's stock market to freer he year 1983 was considerably better than 1982. However, the early promise of a return to normal conditions which I reported in my last statement was not fully realised and the market for the larger, better quality stones remained weak throughout the year.

The book value of our diamond stocks increased by R421.6 million (of which R223.4 million was due to the change in the Rand/Dollar exchange rate) to a total of R2,253.9 million. Measured in United States Dollars, the corrency of sale, the increase was $163 million to a total of $1,852.3 million.

De Beers' profits, including its share of the retained profits of associated companies, were R530.2 million or 147.4 cents per share, that is 20 per cent more than the R442.5 million earned the previous year. Excluding its share of the retained profits of associates, profits were R303.4 million or 84.3 cents per share compared with R202.5 million or 56.3 cents per share, an increase of 50 per cent. While the high level of stocks calls for a conservative distribution policy, in view of the substantially improved profits the Board decided that a small increase of 2.5 cents in the final dividend was justified, resulting in a total distribution of 40 cents per share against 37.5 cents in

Further signs of improving

Sales by the Central Selling Organisation (CSO) for the year at $1,599 million were $342 million or 27 per cent more than in 1982. Retail sales were also better than in either 1981 or 1982 and the Christmas trade in the United States was particularly good. The year 1984 has started well and there are now some signs of a shift in demand upwards from the small less expensive goods to medium quality diamonds. But while markets are generally better the demand for the large stones of good quality is nevertheless still restricted. Many of our customers suffered severe losses during the depression years and are naturally cautious about holding stocks of high quality goods, particularly ara time when real interest rates remain exceptionally high. Moreover the banks who were perhaps unduly ready to provide credit during the boom years are now being extremely careful in making advances. Stocks of diamonds in the cutting centres and bank indebtedness have been sharply reduced so that the trade is in a much better position from which it should be possible to expand the current level of business with safety.

50th auniversary for DTC This year we celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the formation of The Diamond Producers Association and of The Diamond Trading Company. The organisation which was then created for the marketing of diamonds in a manner which would protect the interests of the whole industry has proved itself both in good omes and bad. After the very severe test of the last few years the CSO finds itself in a strong position. There has never been a ome during the period of more than fifty years that I have been in the diamond industry when the proportion of the total world rough diamond production marketed through the CSO was as high as it is today.

Our relations with the major producers outside the De Beers Group continue to be very good and it is generally appreciated that the willingness and ability of our organisation to hold large stocks through very difficult times has been and remains essential for the wellbeing of the whole industry. We are therefore in a good position. to maintain a firm base for the rough diamond market while at the same time showing, to the extent compatible with our basic objective, flexibility in meeting the individual needs of our customers in order restricted demand for these qualities is an immediate and serious problem, it is one which, provided the CSO keeps a firm grip on the market in times such as we have been going through, is bound to solve itself. I am not, therefore, unduly concerned to help them to regain what has been lost and to move forward on a sound basis to a new level of prosperity.

Large stones - can only become rarer

The demand for the small, lower quality goods, is now at a high level and the trade as a whole can only be expanded through an increase in demand for larger sizes and better qualities. This process has already begun burit, will have to go much further before full prosperity can return to the industry. Our sales promotion this year will therefore give special emphasis to the upper end of the market. It is natural that this part of the trade should suffer more from the effects of general business recession and high interest rates than business in small sizes and lower qualities.

In the long run, however, there is good reason to have confidence in the attraction and value of the larger stones of high quality. While there have, in recent years, been a number of important new diamond discoveries, the great bulk of these new productions consists of below average quality stones. The production of the larger and more valuable diamonds comes mainly from the old established mines whose output is less than it was in the past and is continuing to decline. The large good quality diamonds, therefore, can only become rarer and should increase in value. While the

that De Beers should hold substantial stocks of these qualines and am indeed confident that, as has happened more than once in my experience, our present difficulties will eventually turn into important profit-making

Industrial profits rise -- in the face of strong competition

Conditions on the industrial side of the business improved considerably during 1983. This improvement was, however, concentrated in synthetics, though the volume of sales of natural industrial diamonds also increased. For the first time sales of synthetics exceeded $100 million and the profitability of the Group's three diamond synthesis factories improved substantially. This was a considerable achievement since, in the face of strong competition, sales prices tended to decline over the years and the increased profits were attributable to the use of more economic synthesis processes and improved manpower utilisation.

The tendency for industrial demand to move increasingly to synthetics may become a problem when the large Argyle mine in Australia comes into full production since this mine will be a particularly large producer of industrial qualities. It is an important task to work out plans to meet this marketing situation and the CSO is well placed to tackle it.

Diamond production from the mines of the Group, including Debswana which is owned in equal partnership with the Government of Borswana, totalled 21,349,522 carats, compared with 17,399,815 carats in 1982. The main reason for the

A special effort is beir made in this whole area in the hope of being able to extend the life of the CDM deposits. The value of our investments outsid the diamond trade at 31st December 198 amounted to R3,278 million. Income fro these investments in 1983 amounted to R161.7 million, an increase of R12.7 millis over the previous year. The Case of the Kiwi: Creating New World Markets for Farmers' Goods By Ward Sinclair International Herald Tribune

WASHINGTON - Through their governments and producer organizations, farmers from many countries are involved in vigorous promotional efforts to open new markets and sell their goods.

For example, it seemed almost a lark, surely not a premeditated plan for the future, when Stan Conway nestled a few cases of Chinese gooseberries - better known as the kiwi fruit — into a shipmeni of New Zealand fruits headed for Britain two decades ago.

Mr. Conway's move proved 10 be one of those strokes of luck that occasionally after the eating habits of entire regions of the globe.

While the Western world developed ways to recover oil with maximum efficiency and manpower, China struggled to recover oil with the most primitive drilling and pumping equipment. Thousands of workers, many reassigned from the army, were brought in to work the bleak fields. They lived in lents and board huts while winter temperatures plunged far below freezing. #### Chrysler Bonuses May Lead Big 3

DETROIT — The bonuses to be paid to top executives of Chrysler Corp. could be, on average, larger than those paid at General Motors and Ford, according to Chrysler's annual proxy Statement.

Chrysler's bogus plan lapsed when it was near bankruptcy, but the automaker is now seeking shareholder approval for a new plan that would pay the 1,465 senior executives up to $51.6 million for 1983, or an average of $35,221.

In comparison, GM's plan averaged $31,169 while Ford's, which also covers lower-ranked people, averaged $13,367.

The statement did not list individual boguses, as is usually done, because the plan has not been approved. But it did show that Lee A. Iacoccas the Chrysler chairman, earned $1,383,050 by.

the Chrysler chairman, earned $1,383,050 by exercising stock options in the last five years. In addition, Mr. Iacocca's base salary was increased to $475,308 in 1983, from $365,676 in 1982. From September 1979 to September 1989 during the worst of the company's financial crisis, lacocca worked for $1 a year.

CAVEAT: Realism, Reagan, and Foreign Policy

By Alexander M. Haig Jr. 367 pp. Illustrated, $17.95. Macmillan, 866 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

Reviewed by Bernard Gwertzman

A S Alexander M. Haig Jr. recalls it, the White House seemed to him in the first days of the Reagan administration "as mysterious as a ghost ship." You could hear the creak of the rigging and the groan of the timhers and sometimes even glimpse the crew on deck, he writes in this memoir about his contentious 18 months as Rouald Reagan's first secretary of state. "But which of the crew had the helm? Was it Meese, was it Baker, was it someone else? It was impossible to know for sure."

What Haig does make clear, however, in this rather candid discussion of his own frustrations, is that he never could figure out bow to move on this "ghost ship" and was blocked when he tried to act as "the Vicar" of foreign affairs.

For those who covered Haig during those 18 months, this book is unabashed Haig Although he has enlivened the events with a goodly dash of inside Washington gossip, and supplied some, but not many, hitherto unknown foreign policy details, the interest in the book lies in what it tells us about why the Reagan administration's foreign policy has ed throughout to be so poorly organized.

But Haig, who was barely on speaking terms with any of the key players in the administra-tion by the time he was asked to leave, is hardly an objective observer. This is the first insider's book produced by someone from the Reagan administration and, not surprisingly, Haig uses it to settle old grudges against those he felt were his enemies. Whether it will help the Democrats in the fall is debatable.

Haig's chief villains are the very ones Reagan has so relied on, James A. Baker, the chief of staff, Michael K. Deaver, the deputy chief of staff: Edwin Meese 3d, the counselor to the president (who now has his own problems as attorney general-designate); and William P. Clark, who started out as Haig's deputy, then became oational security adviser and is now secretary of the interior.

Haig, who seems trked by their ability to get along easily with Reagan and his own inability to do so, peppers his memoir with gossipy snippets to undercut those aides. For example, he writes with outrage that Meese and Baker, and eventually Deaver, sat at the table with the rest of the Cabinet, instead of against the wall where aides were supposed to be. This, he writes, "was a startling departure from tradi-tion." As an old Nixon staffer, Haig says that even the presidential advisers H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman "at the height of their pride, would oever have dared such an act of lese majestė."

Reagan is treated throughout as an affable, not very involved president, who more often than oot let Meese or somebody else speak for him. "Simply put, Rooald Reagan is a nice guy" but not very interested in foreign affairs, Haig says. Dean Acheson, who is regarded by many as the vicest of the necessary. many as the wisest of the postwar secretaries o state, once wrote that it was crucial for the president and the secretary to meet alooe regularly and speak frankly to one other about the state of the world. Haig, who was an intimate of former president Richard M. Nixon and who watched bow Henry A. Kissinger worked closely with Nixon, complains that he could never see Reagan alone. "I was mortally handi-capped by lack of access to Reagan." he says Neither he, nor Richard V. Allen, the first nadonal security adviser, could get in to see Reagan without Meese, Baker, or Deaver being there too, be says. there too, be says.

Haig notes with irritation how White House aides treated foreign affairs as some annoying encumbrance that was only useful when it enhanced the president's political image. He describes how Zhao Ziyang, the Chinese prime minister, during his first meeting with Reagan at the Cancun conference in 1981, found himself out them by Baker and Deauer who "were self cut short by Baker and Deaver who "were now fidgeting openly and looking at their watches" and prevented the Chinese leader, whom Reagan will visit later this month, from finishing his presentation. President François Mitterrand of France, who gave Reagan a funch at the Versailles conference in 1982, was blocked from having a private chat with the president by the White House aides who said is schedule would not allow it.

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, with whom Haig was constantly at war during his time in office, is denigrated with condescension. "Caspar Weinberger is a capable man, immensely likable and bonest." Haig writes. "But his tendency to blurt out locker-room opinions in the guise of policy was one that I prayed he might overcome. If God heard, He did not answer in any way understandable

By the end of the book, one is left with the impression that, with the exception of loyal staff members such as Sherwood D. Goldberg. the only person Haig consistently finds worthy of respect is himself. He describes nimself as a kind of diplomatic dragon slaver, constantly fighting for sensible foreign policies, until finally, in the end, worn out by his "Waterloo" - the inability to bring about a peaceful solution to the Falkland dispute - and frustrated by arguments with Clark over policy during the Lebanon conflict, Haig finds himself out of a

In addition, he goes to elaborate lengths to explain and justify his actions the day that Reagan was shot and Haig rushed into the White House press room to declare that he was in control. Haig, then and now, failed to realize that his public behavior that day, like so many of his public statements and performances, demonstrated such poor judgment that he became vulnerable not only to criticism but to

This memoir is likely to be seen as a vendetta, but its main criticisms about the president's limited patience in foreign affairs seem well taken. Although the current secretary of state, George P. Shultz, has been ahle to see Reagan alone on a regular basis, the president still does not seem more involved in the management of foreign affairs than be did when Haig was secretary. During the collapse in Lehanon and the latest debates between the administration and Congress on Ceotral America, Reagan has seemed to stay above the fray. It was Haig's mistake to think that he could ostentatiously become the surrogate president for foreign affairs and out arouse indignation in the White

McCammon, Coach of Flyers, Resigns

PHILADELPHIA - Bob McCammon resigned late Tuesday as coach and general manager of the Philadelphia Flyers in a dispute with team officials over his role for next season. The National Hockey League club made the surprise announcement after a day of meetings between McCammon and Jay Snider, the team's president.

Snider said he wanted McCammon to give up coaching and concentrate on his duties as general manager but that McCammon wanted to continue his dual role, McCammon, 43, became general manager last May while continuing as coach.

McCammon joined the Flyer organization with its Maine farm club in 1977. He was made the parent club's head coach in July 1978 but was fired the following January after 50 games. He replaced the man who succeeded him, Pat Quinn, as coach in March 1982. His career record with the Flyers was 119-68-31. With eight rookies on the roster down the stretch, the 1983-84 Flyers finished third in the Patrick Division and were routed by Washington in the first round of the playoffs. It was the second straight opening-round

A College President Ferments Change

By Colin Campbell

SWARTHMORE, Pennsylva-on a — It was typical of the seriousness almost everything at that infect almost everything at Swarthmore College that the job of finding a new president, un-dertaken in 1981, lasted a year and a half, involved the rejection of at least 16 promising candidates and plunged the search committee into such rejection that it considered quitting.

But one day an alumnus recommended a lanky, slightly un-kempt young physician named David W. Fraser, who had never held an academic post. And when Fraser was interviewed the commince's members ranging from professors to husinessmen to Philadelphia Quakers, just melt-

Fraser, now 39 years old, was installed as president in November 1982, replacing Theodore W. Friend 3d, a historian who had resigned. The boyish new president has since become extraordinarily popular.

He questions traditions, in-cluding the school's Oxford-style system of individual study for honors students, which Swarthmore first introduced to the United States in the 1920s.

For decades, Swarthmore has been one of the United States's most rigorous and, periodically, most innovative centers of education in the liberal arts. What Swarthmore does is bound to be noticed. What Swarthmore did in appointing Fraser was to gamble on a most unconventional candi-

Fraser was asked the other day what the proper mission of a liberal arts college was. "Libera-tion." he replied without embarrassment. He added that it was one of his great ambitions, after tracking down epidemic diseases and running Swarthmore, to write the world's best book on twining, an intricate sort of weaving practiced hy various tribal peoples around the world. Fraser has been twining for years.

When Swarthmore's search committee first looked him over he was working at the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, where in 1976 he helped discover the cause of Legionnaire's disease. His wife, Barbara, whom he met while he was at Harvard Medical School, became a lawyer while they were living in Atlanta. When she got a job in Washington near the end of the Carter Administration, he briefly gave up epidemiology to review medical programs for the Office of Management and Bud-

He wants to attract more minority students to Swarthmore, a goal of the school for years that has not produced striking results. The issue is potentially contro-versial, and Fraser has not yet clarified whether he wants to al-ter the school's high standards for admission. But he has approved of more aid to the needy, and he wants Swarthmore to devote millions more to scholarships.

Students have been entranced with Fraser. After a dozen of them were asked if they had no criticism at all of the man (they had described him as open-minded, lively, frank, brainy, a good listener, a shrewd detective of the school's unexamined weaknesses), one senior, Kate Palches, hroke the ensuing silence by denouncing the president's cowlick.

cently. He has decided that powerful intellectual methods seem the most valuable thing to learn from an undergraduate education, and that the value of particular courses could, in theory, be judged according to their success in teaching such methods.

What sorts of methods? Scientific methods, he said, or testing ideas through experiment. De-ductive methods, or reasoning from first principles. Methods of analogy, as in literature and history. His fellow members on the School's Educational Policy Council have been telling him there were others, like aesthetic methods. But he said he was not sure about those.

Soon after Fraser became president the board of managers had to decide how Swarthmore would respond to a new law requiring colleges to help Washington cut off loans to students who failed to register for the draft. Fraser ared with such eloquence against the law, which he said turned schools into police agencies, that even board members who favored compliance decided Swarthmore gained stature through his public

He has called for re-examination of why the school's investment policies oppose South Africa but no other country, and whether individual psychological counseling for students might be replaced by cheaper group coun-

His inquiry into the school's system of special studies for honors students could eventually cause the most resistance, particularly from the faculty. The inquiry follows complaints by some students and teachers that the school's two-tiered system of regular course work and special seminar work removes seminarteaching professors from too many regular courses and that it creates misleading and indivi-duous distinctions between the two types of students.

Fraser has not hinted where his own sympathies lie. But he has invited the whole campus, including the students, to think aloud about this system, and the result so far seems to have been a fer-

PEOPLE Williams Will Settled

wright's $11-million will, has set-tled out of court for $100.000. before Sunday's matince perfe Dakin Wiffiams, 65, of Collinsville. Illinois, contested his brother's will last year in a lawsuit, claiming Tennessee Williams was "out of touch with reality" from years of alcohol and drug abuse when he wrote his will in 1980. Williams left his brother $25,000 to be paid after the death of their sister Rose, who had a lobotomy 50 years ago and lives in a New York state sanitarium. Dakin, who said he was all but cut out of his brother's will because he arranged to have him committed to a St. Louis hospital in 1969 for drug and alcohol addiction, said he decided to settle the case because he was faced with years of litigation. Most of Williams's $11-million estate will be used to establish a scholarship fund for aspiring writers through the University of the South in Sewance, Tennessee. Because the settlement takes the will out of litigation, it also will clear the way for a group of actors, writers and theater supporters who want to buy and preserve Wil-liams's Key West home as a "living memorial" to the writer.

Helmut Schmidt, the former West German chancellor, has canceled plans to play a piano recital with the Israel Philharmonic Or-chestra, a spokesman said Tuesday. Schmidt was scheduled to join Leonard Bernstein and two other German pianists. Christoph Tennstedt and Justus Frantz, in playing a Bach piece for four pianos. Schmidt was supposed to play at concerts in Tel Aviv May 2, 9, 10 and 12, and Jerusalem May 3.

The French actress Leslie Caron. hospitalized since she collapsed backstage before a matinee performance of "On Your Toes," is suffering a debilitating, hut not lifethreatening, ailment, says a spokeswoman for the touring company. Caron, 52, was admitted to St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital in Houston Sunday. Hospital officials refused to release information of Lewis's marriages ended in about Caron's condition at the request of her family. However, Marilyu Levine, a representative for the national tour in New York, said Tuesday that doctors were still
